

Tabulations

The tabulations included in this report represent only a portion of the wide range of data available from the 1991 Census database. Users who have more particular data needs which cannot be satisfied by reference to the published tabulations are encouraged to enquire at the Census Office.

Suppression of Data

In some cases, cells in the published tables have been suppressed to protect the confidentiality promised to respondents. In other cases, categories have been combined to achieve the same result. However, the general principle of suppression was relaxed in respect of certain basic counts of Bermudians and non-Bermudians in the specific areas of formal occupational or vocational training, occupation and housing.

Data which has been suppressed is replaced by an asterisk (*) in the relevant cell and generally represents fewer than five observations.

Racial Groups

Users are reminded that the response categories to the question of racial identity were widened in 1991 and the main tabulations are patterned on the wider categories. In previous census counts, persons of mixed racial background (where one parent was black) were grouped as black. In 1991, all persons who responded as having a mixed racial background were grouped as 'mixed' or combined with 'other racial groups' in accordance with the principle of data suppression. However, for consistent comparisons with 1980 census data in the highlights section of this report, the 1991 data is grouped on the 1980 basis and thus shows slightly higher numbers of 'blacks' compared to the main tabulations.

Income

The tabulations on income are all at the level of household income which is inclusive of all forms of current income (see Concepts and Definitions) for all household members. Data on income distributions at the level of individual recipients or earners is available upon request subject to the size of the income sample for the demographic characteristics indicated in the request.

Further, the income tabulations in this report are in the form of percentage distributions, a standard format for the presentation of sample data. Users who are interested in counts of households in particular income ranges may use the 'proportion' taken from a table in Section 10 (Income) together with the corresponding total in Section 8 (Households). For example, Table 10.1 shows that 13% of Bermudian households had monthly incomes ranging from $5,000 to $5,999 in 1991. Table 8.1 indicates that there were 17,505 Bermudian households in 1991; 13% of 17,505 households is 2,276 households.

Assistance

Any user who requires advice, assistance or clarification on any of the tabulations in this report is encouraged to contact the Census Office.
